NATURE PHOTOGRAPHER

TIPS & TRICKS

A RAW file doesn't lie. All colors are captured and embedded in the image. While they can be tweaked regarding hue, saturation and luminance, it is what it is. The exposure is written in ones and zeroes. While highlights, mid-tones and shadows can be adjusted, if whites are void of detail or if shadows are blocked up, there's no recovery. The composition is fixed. While it can be cropped to reduce clutter, if you cut off part of an animal's tail or nose, the parts are gone.

PANO POWER

The aperture that was used to create the inherent depth of field is unalterable. While focus stacking is in vogue, each given building block of the stack is fixed. If you didn't create the depth of field you want, you're locked in. Finally, your "focus is fixed." I inserted words in quotes as I want to address both the literal and figurative aspects of their meaning. Literally, if you missed the focus, the image is a throwaway. It's soft and can't be enlarged. Figuratively, I bring attention to the creative aspect so you can capture better images, garner ones that go beyond the icons and get you to think outside the box. Hence the subject of this week's tip: Seeing Is Believing.

But I must explain to you how all this mistaken idea of denouncing pleasure and praising pain was born and I will give you a complete account of the system, and expound the actual teachings of the great explorer of the truth, the master-builder of human happiness. No one rejects, dislikes, or avoids pleasure itself, because it is pleasure, but because those who do not know how to pursue pleasure rationally encounter consequences that are extremely painful.
